Pastor's Corner

In our gospel reading for today we see that Jesus continues the message of John the Baptist to “repent, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand.” John has been arrested and now Jesus begins his mission by calling a group of disciples to prepare them to embrace their vocation to build the Kingdom of God.

The word vocation comes from the Latin word “vocare” which means, to call. In baptism, each of us has been given the common call to holiness, to follow the example of Christ. From this common vocation we have individual calls which are unique to each person given the gifts, talents and abilities that God has created within them. Throughout the journey of life we discover the depth of this call and seek to respond with generous hearts.

In the call of the disciples it is important to note that the four men chosen were not poor lost souls. No, as fishermen they were gainfully employed in an occupation that was respected and provided a stable source of income for their families. So, for these men to leave their stable worlds behind was quite a leap of faith.

Another important aspect of today’s story is that the four men were called; they were not embarking on a whimsical journey of adventure nor were they entering this mission with special degrees or certifications. Jesus will teach them all they need to know and He will be their shepherd. Their call, like our call, is to follow Him, to learn from Him and to work with Him in proclaiming the Kingdom of God.

The call of the first disciples can act as a model for us in our spiritual journey. We are called to a life of on-going conversion. This side of heaven there is always something more that we can learn about ourselves and the call we receive in baptism to be more and more like Jesus. As Fr. Richard Fragamini observes, “discipleship is a call from God that draws us from certain situations and calls us to others.”

When responding to the call of Jesus to “leave behind” our current practices He is telling us to leave behind certain ways of living that do not reflect the new life that we share in Christ. For example, a disciple does not become involved in the divisions that can happen in relationships like we hear in St. Paul’s letter to the Corinthians.

Over time the community of believers began picking out favorites, disciples whom they believed reflected most clearly the vision of the Kingdom of God. So, rivalries grew up within the early church with some following Paul, other Apollos, others Cephas and still others Christ. St. Paul quickly challenges this thinking and tells the people of Corinth to leave their old ways behind and to live in harmony and peace with one another. Life is not a competition to see who will get to heaven first. Rather, by living the call to unity as a member of the Body of Christ, we are given an opportunity to draw as many people as possible to the Lord.

The disciples were called to leave behind the darkness of selfishness, envy, prejudice and pride so as to embrace a way of life that would be marked by generosity, kindness, patience, forgiveness and love. Even though we may not hear the radical call to leave everything behind to follow Christ we are called to leave our old self behind through the gift of repentance and reconciliation and to take up the new life that is found in the Light of Christ. Fr. Angelo
