Pastor's Corner

When we think of a farmer planting a field we probably picture a big John Deere tractor moving through the field plowing and planting in calculated & cultivated rows. After hearing today's gospel you might have thought to yourself, "That farmer Jesus spoke of was pretty sloppy when planting his seeds!" The experience Jesus had of farming was very different from what we see today. A farmer in the time of Jesus would walk through an unplowed field and generously scatter seed far and wide—anticipating problems such as birds, stones and weeds. Once sown, the seed would be plowed under and the farmer would await the yield.

In this and other parables used by Jesus we can see that there is no one answer that will explain the message of a parable. By their nature, parables are open-ended and can be interpreted in any number of ways. Today's parable is a good example of this method of teaching. If our focus is on the sower in the parable our thoughts turn to God who generously sows seeds in every type of ground; His living Word is given for all to hear and take to heart. If our focus is on the seed in the parable then our thoughts turn to the faithfulness of God. We can trust that the seed God plants will fulfill the mission it was given to do. If our focus is on the harvest we begin to worry that there will not be a good harvest because of the birds and rocks and weeds, and yet, in the end there is an overwhelming abundance of grain produced. God's Word will bring forth fruit providing a miraculous harvest. If our focus is on the soil, then our thoughts turn to the type of environment that we are preparing in our hearts to receive the Word of God.

Taking a closer look at the action of the farmer we can see that he scattered the seed far and wide in hopes that at least some would grow. In the same way God generously scatters the seeds of his love in hopes that they will take root in any heart that receives it. Jesus didn't come for just one group of people—Jesus came to save all people. His love is not calculated or restricted. Rather, through the heart of Jesus, we come to see that God's love is generous, overflowing and extravagant, it does not return void.

When we see ourselves as the farmer in today's parable we have accepted the call to be disciples and missionaries. We are to be people of faith sowing seeds of God's love generously; hearing the call to be the hands of Christ, to be his voice, his ears and his heart. There was once a Monk who was walking along the street and he came upon a poorly dressed woman and her child, both homeless & hungry. The Monk became angry and cried out to God: "How can you allow this to happen?" "Why aren't you doing something about this suffering?" God was silent for a while and then said: "I did do something about it...I made you."

You and I are called to sow seeds of generosity and compassion in lives that are rocked with poverty, sickness and sorrow. We are called to sow seeds which proclaim dignity & respect for all life to a world choking upon the weeds of violence, apathy and selfishness. We will never know when our generous sowing of the seeds of faith will mean the difference between life or death for someone in need. Sometimes, even in the poorest of conditions, a seed will take root and grow like the seed that sprouts and grows in the crack of the sidewalk. When God's Word is able to overcome the obstacles of fear, indifference, distractions, pride or the need to be in control then God will provide an abundant harvest. Through God's covenant of love sealed in the Precious Blood of Jesus we can trust that God's Word will not return to the Lord void; it will achieve the end for which it was sent.

Fr. Angelo
