PASTOR'S PEN

Over 2700 years ago, the Prophet Isaiah shared a vision and a dream that God had for His people. The people of God were not acting in accord with the Lord and Isaiah could see that they were headed for destruction. Isaiah announced that God would rescue his people from political and spiritual oppression. They had to learn how to trust in God. When trying to symbolize how God would act on behalf of His people, Isaiah used the image of God as a loving mother saying, "As a mother comforts her child, so will I comfort you."

Around 2000 years ago, Jesus sent seventy-two disciples to go forth and proclaim the message of God's love to a people who were experiencing hardship, pain and persecution. The disciples were to trust completely in God's providence, that He would provide for their needs. As they announced the Good News of the Kingdom of God they cured the sick and expelled demons. The Holy Spirit was at work within them just as Jesus had promised. It was not always an easy path for the disciples, but as they persevered they saw that God's covenant of love was stronger than Satan's power. The promise of the Prophet Isaiah had come to fulfillment in Jesus, the Messiah.

It's difficult to keep the flame of faith burning brightly when we are confronted with the challenges of sin and evil in our world. We can easily become frustrated and failing to see results from our efforts we walk away from the call we have been given to build the Kingdom of God.

Because of God's tender mercy we need not let the scars and wounds of our past keep us from experiencing the joy and peace of the Lord. Our call is to faithfully announce the Kingdom of God. Jesus says we don't need a fancy educational degree or a lot of stuff to do this work. What we need is total dependence upon God, trusting in the good works He has begun within us.

I'm reminded of a story that was told to me by a friend about a Religious Sister in her congregation. This Sister was a real go-getter, always involved and on the move. One day she suffered a stroke which affected her left side. The Sister was able to get back much of her mobility except in her left hand. Day after day she would stroke her hand and was very depressed because of it. The doctors couldn't understand why her health stopped improving. Six months later the Sister died, holding her crippled hand.

Our suffering and the challenges we face in life need not paralyze us. As St. Paul says, through Jesus, we can boast of our suffering as we bear the marks of his healing wounds. When we place our pain upon the cross and trust in God's covenant of love we know that our lives will be transformed just as the cross was transformed into the Tree of Life. If we only look at the negative aspects of life we will fail to see the glory of God revealed to us each day.

When we walk in union with Jesus we can hear him say, "I have observed Satan fall like lightning from the sky." When we live with the heart of Christ Satan loses his power to conquer and divide. The unity we share as the Body of Christ is a testimony to the life we share through the power of the Holy Spirit.

Reflecting upon the lives of our ancestors in faith we can be strengthened by their lives of dedication and trust. Jesus sends us out into a world that is as challenging as that of the early disciples. By staying close to Christ and following His teachings and commands we will have all we need to be victorious in the face of any challenge.

*If we only look at the negative aspects of life
we will fail to see the glory of God revealed to us each day.*
