HOMILY BY DEACON RUSTY

The Old Testament and the Gospel reading today form an instructive contrast: the detailed and explicit moral precepts and laws from the Old Testament – “you shall not wrong any widow or orphan, you shall not act as an extortioner” – versus the open-ended principles from the Gospel – “love the Lord your God with all your heart and love your neighbor as yourself.” And while they do form a contrast, it would be a mistake to think they were in any way opposed to one another. Rather, they depend on each other; they are complementary and mutually supportive. They are God’s philosophy of teaching if you will: specifics first, followed by general principles.

We use the same approach ourselves, don’t we? In grammar school, for example, we are taught the rules of reading, writing, and arithmetic before we study the principles upon which they are founded. First things first after all. And we do this even though it is only by understanding the principles themselves that brilliant people like Einstein were able to discover the nature of space and time, that Shakespeare was able to write works of literature that inspire and continue to be read even today, and artists like Michelangelo and Raphael were able to create works of art so realistic and life-like that they still engender wonder and awe.

The rules set a kind of lower bound, as it were. Break the rules of arithmetic and you are no longer doing math. If Einstein had thought the rules of math too limiting and restrictive, or simply ignored them, the Theory of Relativity on which all modern physics is based would have ended up as nothing more than a pile of mathematical rubble and nonsense.

It’s the same in the moral order. The moral rules or precepts form a kind of lower bound below which we are no longer acting morally, below which we are sinning, while the principles on which they are based – love God and love your neighbor free us to explore the heights of love, by His grace, we are capable of; the heights of self-sacrifice, suffering, and the thoughts, words, and most especially the actions that reflect the intensity and the passion with which we as Christians are to love.

One basic truth that God has given to us is to respect the dignity of all life from conception to natural death. In this respect life month, we have heard the call to build a culture of life which is rooted in God’s love for us. Each life is a gift from God and ultimately belongs to him. This is why the U.S. Bishops have reaffirmed that “the threat of abortion remains our preeminent priority because it directly attacks life itself, because it takes place within the sanctuary of the family, and because of the number of lives destroyed.”

You see, it is in the principles, in the loving of God and neighbor, in the inculcating of the Beatitudes in our hearts that we are freed from the shackles of man-made law. Not so we can do what the law forbids, but rather so we can go beyond what the law prescribes. We are free to ascend and explore to the heights of loving God and neighbor.

Once when Jesus was in Jerusalem with his disciples, some Greeks who were visiting Jerusalem came up to Phillip the apostle and said, “Sir, we should like to see Jesus.” And just like the Greeks then, non-Christians now – that is, the world – makes the same request of us every day of our lives; “We should like to see Jesus.”

The world rightly expects that they will see Jesus in how his disciples live their lives; that we truly live out the love we profess for God and neighbor. We will help the poor and the downtrodden, we will love our enemies in a way that many don’t love even their closest friends and family, we will work for the protection of all life, especially the life of the unborn in a way that recognizes the dignity of each person as a child of God. They will notice that we’re not perfect and don’t expect us to be, but they keep hearing Christians talk about grace and the Sacraments and rightly expect to see some evidence of them working in our lives. You see, when we live what we believe, our very lives evangelize those around us. And this is the only way that those who “should like to see Jesus,” actually will.

Marriage Uncorked is back and on tour!

Dare to Date! The Marriage Ministry of Region 7 parishes invites you and your spouse (or fiancé) to a Barn Party and Bonfire at the home of Peter and Sarah Park, 732 New Burlington Rd, Wilmington on Saturday, November 14 from 6:30 until 9pm. We will have the dance floor in the barn and romantic music to enjoy. Or bring a lawn chair for fireside romance. For more information or to RSVP, contact Anna Earl at anna.earl7@gmail.com.

On the second Saturday of each month we alternate between a social event and a formational event designed for married couples' fun and enrichment of our marriages. To enjoy each other’s company in the safest way possible, we will primarily be meeting outdoors and will no longer provide babysitting. Stay tuned or check our Marriage Uncorked Facebook page for monthly events that will include your children (like an inter-parish healing prayer service on October 24.) If you would like to bring an appetizer or sweet to share, please contribute individually wrapped items. We will provide the wine and festivities!

October Respect Life Month - The U.S. bishops emphasize “that abortion is an intrinsic evil, meaning that it is never permitted or morally justified. The enormous number of human lives destroyed by abortion is one factor that elevates its importance.” While they did warn us not to “dismiss or ignore other serious threats to human life and dignity such as racism, the environmental crisis, poverty, and the death penalty,” they did give priority to upholding and defending our brothers’ and sisters’ most basic right—to live.

Rosary Rally now a Eucharistic Procession, October 31st, 2020, 1 p.m.—The October 17th Rosary Rally has been rescheduled to Saturday, October 31st as a Eucharistic Procession to begin at 1 p.m. inside Emmanuel Catholic Church. The procession will take us from Emmanuel Church, through neighboring downtown Dayton, for approximately 1 mile, on paved and flat surfaces. Please invite all you know to this holy procession honoring Our Lord in all things, including these turbulent times that we’re currently experiencing in our community and the United States.

November 1st Solemnity of All Saints falls on Sunday this year. Our weekend Masses will celebrate all those who have entered heaven, including saints who are recognized by the church and those who are known to God Alone.
